Solar power has become a low-cost source of electricity generation in Indiana, providing new jobs, new businesses, and new economic development in the state. Hoosiers benefit from powering our economy with solar energy.

88% Decrease in the cost of solar since 2009

24th in the nation for installed solar

354.9 MW Installed solar capacity in IN

$579.23M Total solar investment in IN

More and more utilities, corporations and the general public want electricity produced from clean, renewable energy, including solar. Some of the United States’ largest companies have invested in projects in Indiana, such as General Motors.

101 Indiana solar companies

0.46% of IN powered by solar energy

3,114 Solar jobs in Indiana

42,000 Homes powered by solar power

Solar is a new cash crop for farmers. Solar power only takes up a small amount of land and provides a new source of income for landowners and rural communities.